SOLUTION 1 Use the exclusive fan to get all the distinct values. Fortunately, within the Google leaves there are some ways easily facilitating this in your spreadsheet. This tutorial will show you how to count unique values on Google leaves. How to use the easiest way to count the unique values on your dataset. It is with the Countunice Function. This functions counts the number of unique values in its selected range. The syntax of this function is: =countunique(Value1, [Value2, ...]) Value1 - à € é Also you can add additional values or ranges to your data, this is an optional parameter is how to use this Formula: In a type of empty calama, the beginning of the fan = Contunique and press Tab. Your keyboard for Insert formulaselect your data range that you want to count unique values for. Counter: Muestra La Cantidad of Numan values of UN Data set. = Sort (transpose (A3: B8, "select Sum (b) Pivot (a)"), 2, false) I am sure there is a way to get rid of the second column, since all values will be 1. Let's use it in the same data as our last example, where we have 100 data lines in column A: (Exclusive (A2: A101), ArrayFormula (Countif (A2: A101))) It is as the Formula will return data when in use: You can see the trailer returns the unique values in a column, and then count the numbers of times each unique value appears within the data range in the next column. Tutorial, we show two different methods to count the unique values in your spreadsheet. If you just want to tell the number of unique values, the container is much more fast, but if you also want to count how many times each value appears, COUNTIF + SINGLE IS THE MONEY WHAT YOU NEED, MORE How to search for the cell contains to do several if the strimpntshow uses the arrayformulaselect your data range that you want to count unique values for. This is a common task that many users need to learn to do. In my opinion, there is no ideal solution. [OPTIONAL] Additional values or ranges to be taken into account for value. See the work example link at the top to see exactly how this is implemented.
